SHROVE TUESDAY OR PANCAKE DAY IN DIFFERENT COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

Shrove Tuesday is celebrated not only in Slav countries but in nearly entire Europe as well. The tradition to celebrate the coming of spring remained in various cities and countries, from Siberia to Spain. Shrove Tuesday is celebrated seven weeks before Easter. The date differs each year. In 2011, Russians are going to celebrate Pancake Day on February 28, and Lithuanians – on March 8th.

In Russia, Pancake Day is the holiday that has been preserved since pagan times. This spring holiday is the welcoming of spring and seeing off of winter.

Pancake day (in Lithuanian – Užgavėnės) is forgiveness Tuesday, marking the end of winter, during which a merry masquerade feast with pancakes, dances by the fire, burning of winter symbol – Moreh is arranged. Creatures in masks gather for the celebration – devils, witches, ghosts of death and other funny and creepy characters.

In the countries of Western Europe,

Shrove Tuesday is slowly changing into a multinational carnival, where quarrels and rows fade away, and unbridled gaiety, laughter and humor come to reign.

In Scotland, "fast cakes" were baked on Shrove Tuesday. A handful of oat flour was taken into hands, pressed and soaked into cold water, the made ball was baked in a stove in hot ember. In Scotland, baking of pancakes is considered an important act, where all family members are trying to participate: one of them butters a pan, another one pours pastry, the third one turns pancakes over...

Women's with pancakes race has been organized in one of the towns of England for many years. Every woman has to run with a hot pan and a pancake. According to the rules of the competition, the participants must be older than 18, each of them must wear an apron and a kerchief; during the race it is necessary to turn a pancake over no less than three times and catch it. The first woman to give her pancake to the ringer becomes the champion of pancake race.

In schools of Denmark, theatrical performances and concerts are held during those days. Pupils exchange signs of friendship, the send funny letters to their friends without signing or writing their addresses. If a boy receives a letter from a girl and guesses her name, she will give him a chocolate on Shrove Tuesday.

In Czech Republic in those merry days, young men travel around a village with faced painted with soot and music carrying an ornate wooden bar – "klatik". It is hung on each girl's neck or tied to her hand or leg. If you want to pay off – trick or treat.

In the countries of Former Yugoslavia, you will be certainly put into a pig trough and dragged through a village. And on the roof of a house you may find a figure of a straw man.
